

The Honolulu Advertiser

** Thursday, February 9, 1984 A-3

Rewald gets travel OK

Ronald Rewald, left, obtained permission yesterday to travel to the Mainland for three weeks to visit his family in Wisconsin and attorney Melvin Belli in San Francisco. Rewald only recently was released from Oahu Community Correctional Facility where he has spent nearly half a year unable to post bail on theft charges involving his bankrupt investment firm Bishop, Baldwin, Rewald, Dillingham and Wong. Rewald's attorney, Samuel King Jr., is at right. Story on Page A-8.

Advertiser photo
by David Yamada

The Honolulu Advertiser

** Thursday, February 9, 1984 A-3

Rewald gets travel OK

Ronald Rewald, left, obtained permission yesterday to travel to the Mainland for three weeks to visit his family in Wisconsin and attorney Melvin Belli in San Francisco. Rewald only recently was released from Oahu Community Correctional Facility where he has spent nearly half a year unable to post bail on theft charges involving his bankrupt investment firm Bishop, Baldwin, Rewald, Dillingham and Wong. Rewald's attorney, Samuel King Jr., is at right. Story on Page A-8.

Advertiser photo
by David Yamada

